My God heals, serves and Restores

Proverbs 4: 20-22

Jesus' ministry when viewed in its entirety discloses only one mission: "To serve" Serve with care, peace, healing, companionship, kindness, faithfulness goodness, joy and love. The healing ministry of Christ is one such perfect medium of selfless service and platform for testifying the miraculous work of God in the lives of many.

Healing the sick was the hallmark of Jesus' ministry and it did not discriminate based on wealth, status and power. In fact, history testifies that the largest beneficiaries were marginalized. With the same vision, came many such missionaries to serve selflessly with great dedication to the underprivileged, the needy and those restricted within the boundaries set by religious and societal norms. The key takeaway here from their lives is the implementation and implication of the latter half of Matthew 20:28, "Just so, the son of Man did not come to be served but to serve and give his life as a ransom for many".

As a mission hospital, we carry the burden to minister with joy and utmost care. We also pray for each and everyone looking to be healed.

The healing in the ministry of Christ as evidenced in the gospel was not limited to just physical renewal, but also emotional, spiritual and mental. Our agenda is similar to that. He knew the suffering that came along with a disease was not limited to just a physical form. Hence, he found a great opportunity to express his love, demonstrating God's power to bring wholeness and restoration in mind, body and spirit. Unlike today's modern healthcare, where the motive is majorly limited to just capitalism and profit. In the healing ministry of Christ, there stands no opportunity to sow dissension among people of any kind of disease, social status, power, caste or creed. What is exceptionally remarkable is the faith of a ministering servant and the grace that they are bestowed upon with, while they serve the sick.

The healer, the ministry and the sick are all interconnected in the context of Christ centric stewardship. The only message here is aspiring to experience God's supernatural presence while treating, in receiving or just praying. To testify the wonderful functioning that comes with just having faith. While many suffer from a disturbed physical, mental or emotional state, we aim leave with them with an assurance that comes from complete faith in Christ and our personal experiences in witnessing moments of miracles.

As we observe the healing ministry week, we pray for those who are unwell, that the spirit of God which healed the paralyzed, the blind, the crippled, the leprous, and many such other diseases, also heal them. May the same spirit that raised the dead also resurrect the broken and fallen pieces of such lives. We pray for their families, friends and care givers who face challenges of numerous kinds and may their faith in Jesus move mountains.

We ask for God's special guidance and favor on our healthcare professionals, communities, leaders, chaplains and churches participating in this glorious healing ministry and that they strive to create a just, healthy society in love as per the command of God.
